CEO'S AND PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Welcome to our Annual Report for 2013, in which we share the achievements and challenges of the second year of our strategy, Changing The Rules.

From Isolio and Kieni in Kenya, where we promoted sustainable agriculture among women smallholder farmers, consumers, academics and government officials, to Oddar Meanchey in Cambodia, where we supported residents to diversify their crops, we enabled farmers – especially women – to improve agricultural techniques and yields, as well as make their voices and needs heard at local, regional and international levels.

THIS YEAR WE CONTINUED RESPONDING TO HUMANITARIAN CRISES WITH A PARTICULAR FOCUS ON PREVENTING AND RESPONDING TO VIOLENCE AGAINST WOMEN DURING CONFLICT AND DISASTERS. WE EMPOWERED WOMEN WHO ARE VULNERABLE TO VIOLENCE DURING DISASTERS TO IDENTIFY THE THREATS THEY FACE, AND TO MAKE THEMSELVES BETTER PREPARED TO RESPOND.

Archie Law
Executive Director

The Hon
John Dowd
AO QC
President

Our response to Typhoon Haiyan in the Philippines centred on building womens' leadership and ensuring that women were protected from violence. We also began a groundbreaking research project with the University of Sydney that will enable women survivors of violence in the Democratic Republic of Congo and Kenya to access justice. We are standing by women subject to the greatest human rights abuses of our time.

In 2013 we have been encouraging our fellow Australians to challenge the status quo and critically evaluate how their lives and choices affect people living in poverty. This year we made great progress towards improving awareness in Australia of unjust international tax systems and regimes that deny people living in poverty access to essential services such as education.

Our work this year took place against a backdrop of challenging external and internal factors. Externally, the global economic downturn left ActionAid facing a downturn in income, and so we adjusted our plans to reinforce our financial sustainability. This project included the sale of our premises to establish an investment fund to guarantee our future growth. Internally, we also faced challenges. Our staff have been stretched as we deliver ongoing programming on top of mobilising resources for our work and increasing our ability to demonstrate and celebrate our successes.

We thank our Board and staff members for their continued dedication and commitment, which is inspiring for all of us at ActionAid. Above all we thank our supporters for your continued commitment to ActionAid's work, to Changing the Rules and to enabling people living in poverty to enjoy human rights and justice.

STORYFROM THE PHILIPPINES

HOLLY MILLER
MEDIA MANAGER*

*Deployed to The Philippines as Emergency Response Communications Advisor following Typhoon Haiyan

After Typhoon Haiyan, I met a 28-year-old woman named Imelda Bama. Imelda saved seven families after the storm, leading them out of their bamboo shacks and battling with them through knee-high water to safety, before making her way alone to Manila to pick up supplies.

She lost six baby cousins in the typhoon. “I can’t believe they’re gone” she told me.

Imelda and I are the same age. I listened to her tale in awe. I don’t think I have ever been as inspired by anyone as I was by her. The determination in her voice and the smile that she gave me as she told her story made my heart swell.

STORYFROM UGANDA

SALLY HENDERSON PhD
SENIOR PROGRAM
COORDINATOR

I remember meeting an ActionAid women’s empowerment group in Kwasir, Uganda. Sitting in the shade of their own grain store, we talked about Female Genital Mutilation (FGM).

“WE FIGHT IT” they told me determinedly.

“THEY DO IT IN SECRET, IN THE FOREST OVER THERE. IT’S SO HARMFUL.”

The women performed a theatre piece for me – a man and his wife arguing, and the man saying

“HOW CAN MY PROPERTY ANSWER BACK?”

The play showed the wife bringing in the members of her women’s group and saving her daughters from a circumcision ceremony. It brought tears to my eyes to see the bravery of these women, and really brought home the importance of our work here.

ADDRESSING VIOLENCE AGAINST WOMEN

I went back to the roots of my own work with ActionAid when I made a research visit to the coast of Kenya this year. The local women's group have managed to save around 30 girls from violence, child labour and early marriage. They greet each other jovially with Swahili words meaning 'Women, you are awake!'

They often take the girls into their own homes, getting them back to school and back to their families. When it comes time for rapists and attackers to come to trial, they sing and dance outside courtrooms to demand justice. Many are poor peasant farmers – but they save money every month just to help defend the rights of women and girls.

MARK CHENERY
HEAD OF COMMUNITY ENGAGEMENT

In a remote Indian village, only accessible by boat, I sat huddled together on the concrete floor of a dimly lit community hall with a group of women. They told me that three years ago, most married women here were forced to stay inside their houses – locked away like prisoners. It was hard for me to imagine.

Yet here we were today, sitting in public and without a man in sight - apart from me.

They spoke of freedom. Of becoming leaders. Of proving to their men, as well as their daughters, that women have the brains and determination to make life better not only for themselves, but for their whole community.

STORYFROM FUNDRAISING

It takes more than organisation to fundraise. It takes passion, commitment and determination. That's why I was so impressed with how the Vietnamese community in NSW and WA rallied together to support families affected by the devastating typhoon that struck the Philippines last year.

They put on events and street collections to raise more than $92,000 in NSW and $21,000 in WA – phenomenal amounts.

“AFTER THE FALL OF SAIGON, THE FILIPINO GOVERNMENT AND PEOPLE OPENED THEIR HEARTS AND HOMES IN WELCOMING VIETNAMESE REFUGEES FLEEING THEIR COUNTRY BY BOAT.”

said Thang Ha, the President of the NSW chapter of the Vietnamese Community in Australia.

I was so inspired to see the Vietnamese community come together to return the favour when it was most needed.

STORYFROM TAX POWER!

Last year I took part in ActionAid's Tax Justice campaign, which seeks to draw attention to multi-national corporations exploiting tax loopholes in poor countries, robbing them of much needed tax dollars that fund education, health and other essential services. The stunt we used to generate interest in the traditionally unsexy topic of tax was a 'Pop-up tax haven' on Bondi Beach.

With plastic palm trees and bags filled with fake money we turned the iconic beach into a tax dodger's paradise! We got some great images and a buzz on the day, but there is still a long way to go in bringing about tax justice for people living in poverty around the world.

STORYFROM

OCCUPIED PALESTINIAN TERRITORIES

GRACE NICHOLAS
SENIOR PROGRAM
COORDINATOR

I visited the occupied Palestinian territories earlier this year and met a group of women who don't seem to know the meaning of self-pity.

They live in tents on a desert hilltop called Susiya in the south of Hebron, because the authorities will not allow them to build permanent homes. Their primary school is a demountable classroom which, until this year, only catered for children up to Grade 5. After that, the children had to walk for two hours, past hostile Israeli settlements and through military checkpoints, to reach the nearest school. None of the 10 women I met, even the 14-year-old girl next to me, have an education beyond this point, and they are barely literate.

WITH ACTIONAID'S SUPPORT, THE WOMEN OF SUSIYA JOINED FORCES AND DECIDED TO LOBBY FOR ANOTHER YEAR OF SCHOOLING. THEY SUCCEEDED IN SECURING A COMMITMENT FROM THE LOCAL AUTHORITIES FOR A CLASSROOM AND TEACHER SO THAT THEIR CHILDREN NOW AT LEAST CAN CONTINUE EDUCATION TO GRADE 6.

Farija, a mother of six, told me she was thrilled, notwithstanding that the entire village may be bulldozed at any moment under the terms of an Israeli court demolition order. As is often the case in this area, the reason for the order is unclear. Despite this uncertainty, Farija spoke of the pride she feels at having been able to speak out and make this achievement for her community and her daughter.

"I WAS SO WORRIED, EXPECTING TO SEE HER JUST SITTING AT HOME. NOW I DREAM SHE MAY EVEN FINISH HIGH SCHOOL AND GO TO UNIVERSITY," Farija told me, her face bright.

JUSTICE FOR WOMEN

CASEY MCCOWAN

DEVELOPMENT
COORDINATOR

Last year I travelled to Northern Uganda as part of ActionAid's project Making Transitional Justice Work for Women.

There I listened to young women speak of being abducted, raped and kept as 'forced wives' by the Lord's Resistance Army (LRA), being infected by HIV and caring for children fathered by their captors.

It was heartbreaking. However, the women also spoke so passionately about how determined they are to make policy makers and governments right the wrongs they have suffered.

I remember one young woman definitely and bravely told me,

"THERE IS NOT YET JUSTICE. THE GOVERNMENT FAILED TO PROTECT US. THEY SPOILED OUR FUTURE AND THEY SHOULD ACKNOWLEDGE THIS AND ASK US FOR FORGIVENESS."

BANGLADESH

NICOLA BAILEY

When the fragile walls of Rana Plaza collapsed, the world looked on in horror. As a photojournalist I was there to witness the tragedy. Climbing over the rubble, my heart broke at the sight of the bodies. Outside on the streets and in the hospitals, people shoved photos of their loved ones in my face – desperate in the hope I might be able to help them.

At times like this when the horror threatens to overwhelm you, it's important to try and find something positive that can come out of it. I was particularly strengthened to see the work being done by ActionAid on the ground in Bangladesh, educating women about their labour rights and giving them the skills and the confidence to demand them.

STORYFROM COMEDY FESTIVAL

In May 2013, ActionAid came together with the Sydney Comedy Festival to host an all-women comedy night to highlight the issues of women's rights and the work that ActionAid does to address them.

It was an idea that came from the recognition that as a fairly new organisation in Australia, too few people knew of ActionAid or of the work that we do supporting women living in poverty to stand up, raise their voices and claim their human rights.

WE ALSO WANTED TO SHOWCASE THE POWER OF WOMEN'S LAUGHTER, EVEN IN THE FACE OF TERRIBLE CIRCUMSTANCES.

We were lucky enough to have established relationships with two of Australia's funniest women, Judith Lucy and Claire Hooper, both of whom assured us that we had a killer idea on our hands, and generously agreed to take to the stage on the night.

We were thrilled when they were joined on the line-up by Wendy Harmer, George McEncroe, international act Gina Yashere and more.

With the Enmore Theatre as our venue, we knew the challenge upon us - to sell 1600 seats - was significant. In the months that led up to the event, we plastered Sydney with posters and flyers. We reached out to other women's organisations and community groups, to media, and to advertisers to promote the event for us - and the support flooded in. We found that everyone we spoke to was as excited as we were and were keen to offer support however they could.

As the night approached, ticket sales went up - and up and up.

When the night finally arrived, I stood behind the curtains on the stage at the Enmore, and watched our sold-out event fill up with an audience that cheered - for the women on stage, and for the work that ActionAid does supporting the power of women's laughter around the world.

FOR ME, IT WAS THE MOST EXCITING MOMENT OF 2013 BY FAR.

STORY FROM

JESCA'S RESTAURANT

GEMMA PITCHER
COMMUNICATIONS SPECIALIST

I met Jesca in her restaurant, a tiny little brick building outside her village in Uganda. She served me her speciality, millet porridge with tamarind, and told me how she'd gone from never having any money of her own to owning her own business.

"IF I EVEN WANTED TO BUY A BAR OF SOAP, I HAD TO ASK MY HUSBAND" she told me.

But then Jesca was chosen by the members of her ActionAid women's group to receive a bag of groundnuts on loan. She planted and harvested them to get three more bags.

It soon turned out Jesca had the soul of a true businesswoman. She shelled the nuts and set up a stall at the ferry crossing, selling fried nuts and nut butter. It was a triumph – all her groundnuts sold out in two months, giving her over $125.

"I just looked at all that money. More than I'd ever held in my hand in my life, and mine alone!" she told me, breaking into a huge gap-toothed smile.

"I SLAPPED 200,000 SHILLINGS INTO MY HUSBAND'S HAND AND TOLD HIM TO GO AND PAY THE CHILDREN'S SCHOOL FEES!" she said, throwing back her head and laughing in pure delight at the memory.

Jesca's next venture was to rise at 4am every morning and walk back to the river crossing, this time to cook and sell chapattis (flatbreads).

"PEOPLE ON THE ROAD LAUGHED AND TOLD ME TO GO BACK TO TENDING MY HUSBAND'S HOUSE. BUT I JUST IGNORED THEM" she told me, her face stubborn.

Her next idea was the restaurant. "I made the bricks myself, with my children. I spent the rest of the chapatti money on labourers, cement and roofing materials. And when it was done, I just sat there and stared at it. I couldn't believe it was mine!"

FINANCIALS

During 2013, ActionAid Australia's operating revenue reduced by 34% to $7.5 million. The reduction in operating revenue was mainly in overseas grants (as projects in Indonesia were completed) and other income (a reduction in funds from ActionAid International). Non-operating revenue increased by $3.0 million due to a capital profit made on the sale of property, (the $3.0 million has been transferred to a capital reserve).

Public funds raised totalled $3.4 million and comprised 46% of operating revenue for the year, compared to 31% in the previous year. Public funds included donations, wills and gifts received from the Australian public as well as non-monetary income such as volunteer or pro bono services. In 2013 ActionAid Australia received funds from donors who left gifts in their wills, totalling $133,545.

Grant income contributed to 53% of operating revenue at $4.0 million. Of this, $3.7 million came from AusAID and $0.3 million from other Australian and overseas sources. Interest income received was $53,652 (shown in investment income) and other income was $77,924 (due mainly to additional fund raising activities, such as comedy gala ticket sales).

Our total program expenditure was 68% of expenditure for 2013, a decrease from 73% in 2012. Of this, overseas projects received $4.0 million (53%), $716,744 (9%) funded project management costs in Australia and $442,498 (6%) funded campaigns and community education in Australia. Program expenditure includes ActionAid Australia's programs overseas as well as the costs of public campaigning in Australia.

Fundraising accounted for 17% of total expenditure, a 1% decrease from 2012. As previous years' investment in ActionAid's face-to-face fundraising program gathered momentum there was less investment needed in developing the program. Accountability and administration costs increased by 2% from 2012 and are 12% of total expenditure.
